Current positions

Associate Director, RAND Health, June 2011 – present.

I am an Associate Director of RAND Health, one of the largest private health research groups in the world and RAND's largest operating division. My specific areas of responsibility include RAND Health's contract business line, managing policy and processes related to bid decisions, procurement, and administration of government and nonprofit contracts, with an emphasis on contracts with the Department of Health and Human Services. I also play a key role in research staff recruitment and development, as well as business planning. As RAND Health's senior leader on the East Coast, I frequently represent the unit in discussions with key contacts in government agencies, non-profits, and non-governmental entities based in the National Capitol region.

Senior Social Scientist, RAND, March 2009 – present.

My research focuses on improving the quality of medical care in the U.S., with a special emphasis on practical tools for use in the health care system and program evaluation. I have an interest in the development and use of measures for monitoring the status of health care, and how such tools can be used to drive improvement. In addition, I am particularly concerned with systematic barriers that cause health care disparities by race, ethnicity, and socioeconomic status. My current projects include leadership of a multi-million dollar initiative to identify and evaluate programs to support psychological health among members of the military, and leading the development, testing, and implementation of patient experiences of care surveys within accountable care organizations and physician group practices.

Education

Ph.D. September 1989 – May 1994 (Diploma Awarded May 1995). Population Dynamics. Johns Hopkins University, School of Hygiene and Public Health, Baltimore, MD.

Minor Field: Sociology.

Dissertation topic: Coresidence and Intergenerational Assistance in the United States.

Dissertation advisor: Robert Schoen, Ph.D.

B.A. September 1985 – May 1989. Health and Society. University of Rochester, School of Arts and Science, Rochester, NY.

Magna Cum Laude, Graduation with Honors and Highest Distinction in major, Certificate in Management Studies (Personnel Management), Minor in Comparative Literature.

Previous positions

Director, Public Sector Initiatives, RAND Health, August 2009 – June 2011.

I coordinated all federal, state, and local government contracts for RAND Health, with responsibility for selecting the solicitations to which RAND responds, identifying team leadership, and ensuring high-quality proposal submission.

Senior Scientist, Institute for Health Policy, Massachusetts General Hospital, April 2005-March 2009.

I conducted health services research and health policy analyses related to improving access to and quality of medical care in the U.S., and with a particular focus on health care disparities by race, ethnicity, language, and socioeconomic status as well as the implementation of electronic health records.

Associate Director, Disparities Solutions Center and Senior Scientist, Institute for Health Policy, Massachusetts General Hospital, April 2005 – February 2007.

I led the research and evaluation efforts for the newly formed Center for Health Disparities within the Institute for Health Policy.. The Center seeks to conduct applied research, translation of research into practice, and program evaluation designed to help identify and disseminate effective methods for reducing racial and ethnic disparities in health care.

Senior Advisor for Intramural Research/Senior Advisor for Safety Nets and Low-Income Populations (December 2003 – March 2005), Agency for Healthcare Research and Quality, United States Department of Health and Human Services, Rockville, MD.

I developed policy and strategic direction for Agency activities related to using research results to improve health care, including fostering collaborative projects and providing technical assistance to ensure that research has an impact beyond journal publication in the areas of clinical practice, the organization of care, and health policy. In addition, I developed policy, set direction, and planned the strategic role of intramural research in the Agency's overall mission. I also served as the coordinator of the Agency's activities related to low-income populations and the health care safety net, and conducted research in this area as well as research focused on emergency departments.

Senior Research Scientist/Senior Advisor on Safety Nets and Low-Income Populations (June 2003 – December 2003), Center for Delivery, Organization, and Markets, Agency for Healthcare Research and Quality, United States Department of Health and Human Services, Rockville, MD.

I led initiatives related to emergency department care and an inter-Agency effort to develop a data system for monitoring the status of the health care safety net. I conducted research on access to and use of health care services in the U.S., with a particular emphasis on emergency department use and overcrowding, racial/ethnic and socioeconomic disparities in care, and the health care safety net.

Director of Intramural Research (July 2000 – May 2003), Center for Primary Care Research, Agency for Healthcare Research and Quality, United States Department of Health and Human Services, Rockville, MD.

I developed and oversaw the intramural research program, with a growing staff of researchers from a variety of medical and social science backgrounds. Maintained an active research agenda focused on access to and use of health care services in the U.S., with a particular emphasis on emergency department use and overcrowding, racial/ethnic and socioeconomic disparities in care, and the health care safety net. In addition, I led the Agency's efforts to build research agendas addressing the health care needs of low-income Americans and those residing in urban areas, and led an inter-Agency effort to develop an initiative that monitors the status of the health care safety net.

Co-Coach (September 2001 – September 2002), Excellence in Government Fellows Program, Council for Excellence in Government, Washington, DC.

I co-led a wide variety of experiential learning activities in an intensive, year-long leadership development program for mid-level federal managers. My responsibilities included planning and facilitating activities for the group, as well as individual and small-group coaching.

Senior Social Science Analyst (November, 1998 - July, 2000) and Sociologist/Service Fellow (September, 1994 - November, 1998), Center for Cost and Financing Studies, Agency for Healthcare Research and Quality (formerly the Agency for Health Care Policy and Research), United States Department of Health and Human Services, Rockville, MD.

I maintained an active research agenda focusing on the access to and use of health care services in the U.S. In addition, as a member of the team responsible for designing and administering the Medical Expenditure Panel Survey, was involved in all phases of the survey process, including questionnaire design, pre-testing, interviewer training, evaluation, data editing, and data release activities.

Research Assistant (Fall 1990 - July 1994) for Robert Schoen, Ph.D., Department of Population Dynamics, Johns Hopkins University School of Hygiene and Public Health.

Performed statistical analysis and data management for projects related to marriage and cohabitation, and formal models of general population dynamics. Analysis tasks included exploratory data analysis, regression analysis, multistate life table methodology, two-sex analysis, estimation from vital statistics, interactive mathematical computing, and population projections.

Research Assistant (Fall 1989 - Fall 1990) for Laurie S. Zabin, Ph.D., Department of Population Dynamics, Johns Hopkins University School of Hygiene and Public Health.

Conducted bibliographic research for projects related to family planning and AIDS in sub-Saharan Africa. Performed statistical analysis for projects related to adolescent pregnancy.

Academic appointments

Associate Professor (January 2008 – March 2009), Institute of Health Professions, Massachusetts General Hospital, Boston, MA.

Assistant Professor of Medicine (January 2007 – March 2009), Harvard Medical School, Boston, MA.

Lecturer (September 2007 – December 2007), Institute of Health Professions, Massachusetts General Hospital, Boston, MA.

Lecturer on Medicine (November 2005 – December 2006), Harvard Medical School, Boston, MA.

Associate, Department of Population and Family Health Sciences (July 1995 – March 2005), Bloomberg School of Public Health, Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, MD.

Funded projects

2011-2014      Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services, Principal Investigator. CAHPS Survey Implementation for the Medicare Shared Savings Program. (Contract, $8,634,553).

This contract focuses on the development, testing, and implementation of patient experiences of care surveys within accountable care organizations that are eligible for the Medicare Shared Savings Program and physician group practices participating in CMS' Physician Quality Reporting System.

2010-2011      LIVESTRONG, Principal Investigator. Supporting Multiple Components of LIVESTRONG'S Intramural Research Program. (Contract, $469,498).

This project examines the concerns of cancer survivors, conducts strategic planning for the LIVESTRONG Survivorship Centers of Excellence Network, and develops a cancer stigma index to improve global cancer education and awareness.

2010-2015      Agency for Healthcare Research and Quality, Principal Investigator. (IDIQ Contract number HHS290201000017I). Accelerating Changes and Transformation in Organizations and Networks.

This IDIQ contract requires managing a large consortium of 23 national partnering organizations to address a diverse set of needs in the area of implementation and dissemination research for improving health care and spreading innovation.

2009-2013      Defense Centers of Excellence for Psychological Health and Traumatic Brain Injury, Principal Investigator. Innovative Practices for Supporting Psychological Health and TBI. (Contract, $7.05 million).

This project identifies and describes all programs designed to provide psychological health and traumatic brain injury services for active duty, guard, and reserve members of the military as well as their family members. In addition, we are conducting evaluations of 20 of these programs, and are developing a toolkit to support a standardized approach to further evaluation work.

Teaching experience

Quality and Disparities in Health Care. Instructor (Fall, 2007 and Fall, 2008). Interdisciplinary course, Institute of Health Professions, Massachusetts General Hospital.

Course instructor for graduate-level nursing, physical therapy, and clinical investigations students, focused on quality and racial and ethnic disparities in health care in the U.S.

Population and Social Change. Instructor (Fall, 1998, Fall, 1996, and Fall, 1995). Department of Population Dynamics, Johns Hopkins University School of Hygiene and Public Health.

Course instructor for Master's-level students, focused on the demography of developing countries. Topics included theories of fertility decline, mortality differentials, and international migration in developing countries.

Population Dynamics of the U.S. Instructor (Fall, 1997). Department of Population Dynamics, Johns Hopkins University School of Hygiene and Public Health.

Course instructor for Master's-level students, focused on demographic processes in the United States.

Johns Hopkins University School of Hygiene and Public Health. Teaching Assistant for Introduction to Population Dynamics (1992-1993); Introduction to Demographic Methods (1992); Formal Demography (1990-1991); Health Information Systems (1990). Lab Instructor for Computer Applications to Public Health (1994).

Curriculum offerings

Collecting Race and Language Data at Trinity Health. 2009. I led the development and implementation of an educational program to teach registration and clinical staff how to train staff in 44 hospitals nationwide to collect race and language data for patients. In addition, I provided consulting services to assist Trinity Health in preparing their hospital equity reports.

Collecting Race and Ethnicity Data in Hospitals in Montgomery County, MD. 2009. I led the development and implementation of an educational program to teach registration and clinical staff in all hospitals in Montgomery County, MD how to collect data on patients' race, ethnicity, and language in order to prepare the nation's first county-wide hospital equity report.

Collecting Race and Ethnicity Data in Massachusetts Hospitals. 2006. I led the development of an educational program to teach registration staff in all hospitals in Massachusetts how to collect data on patients' race, ethnicity, and language in compliance with a new state regulation.

Emergency Severity Index, Version 4: Everything You Need to Know and Emergency Severity Index, Version 4: Implementation Handbook. 2005. The Emergency Severity Index is a validated, reliable 5-level emergency department triage system. I led the development of these training tools, which are designed to provide all the information an emergency department would need to decide whether or not to use the Emergency Severity Index, to train their staff in the triage algorithm, and to implement the use of the tool in their department.
