The authors wish to acknowledge the following individuals for their assistance to the study:

Col Robert Stephan, United States Air Force (USAF), our project monitor, made important contributions to our understanding of special operations—particularly the challenges of hunting mobile missiles—and opened many doors for us in the special operations community. We benefited greatly from his able assistance and appreciate his professionalism, collegiality, and enthusiastic support.

Maj Michael Pietrucha, HQ USAF/XOXS, provided very detailed and constructive comments on two different drafts of the book. He also met with the research team twice to help refine the concepts in Chapter Three. The new concepts streamline the information flow and make better use of manned combat aircraft. We greatly appreciate the time and effort he put into this, as well as his willingness to share his experience flying combat missions in Operation Allied Force.

At the Air Force Research Laboratory’s (AFRL’s) Sensor Directorate, we thank Laurie Fenstermacher, Ed Hamilton, Zdzislaw Lewantowicz, Dennis Mukai, Steve Sawtelle, Lt Col Steve Suddarth, Vincent Velten, and Edmund Zelnio for meeting with us to discuss their work on foliage-penetrating radars, the Tanks Under Trees initiative, and other sensor developments. We also thank David Lewis, AFRL Space Vehicles Directorate, for his assistance with space technologies.

At the Air Force Research Laboratory’s Munitions Directorate, we thank Capt Peter Gumulak for his help in arranging our visit and Col “Dutch” Dutchyshyn, Robb Brown, Tom Grady, Byron Belcher, T. J. Klausutis, Robert Orgusaar, John Wolverton, and Lt Mandy Birch for their excellent briefings on new munitions programs.

Thanks to Lt Shelly Reade, Program Manager for the Advanced Remote Ground Unattended Sensor (ARGUS) program at the USAF Electronic Systems Center, for helping us understand the latest thinking and developments related to air-implanted ground sensors.

We thank Lt Col Jon Boylan of the National Imagery and Mapping Agency (NIMA) for briefing us on NIMA’s capabilities to support offensive operations against TELs and for providing us with NIMA products.

Phil Lundy and Dale Rehak of the Army's Night Vision and Electronic Sensors Directorate at Fort Belvoir, Virginia, kindly met with us to discuss unattended ground sensor programs.

Darren Woodruff and Mark (“Tracker”) Hanson, U.S. Army Space and Missile Defense Battle Lab, Huntsville, Alabama, provided information on the Tactical Integrated Geographic Environment (TIGER) and arranged for a member of the team to observe TIGER in support of Fleet Battle Experiment Hotel aboard the USS Mount Whitney.

We thank Lt Col Walter Price, USAF, from the Defense Advanced Research Projects Agency/Tactical Technology Office, for coming by RAND to brief us on their hypersonic weapons program.

At the Air Force Command and Control Training and Innovation Group (AFC2TIG) at Hurlburt AFB, Florida, Maj Robert Levinson, Lt Col Mark Ballard, Lt Col Pepe Lopez, Maj Glenn Fetter, and Capt Salt Bacot gave us informative briefings on their efforts to improve the dynamic battle control process.

At the Air Armaments Center, Eglin AFB, Florida, we thank Kathy Douglas, Doug Nguyen, Bob Herring, Frank Christopher, Greg Jenkins, and Joe Anderson for briefings and stimulating discussion on USAF munitions programs.

We thank Col Jeff Buckmelter, Commander, 720th Special Tactics Group, Lt Col Steve Haswell, Commander, 23rd Special Tactics Squadron, and the officers, noncommissioned officers (NCOs), and airmen of the 23rd Special Tactics Squadron for briefings and demonstrations on their unit capabilities. We also greatly appreciated their willingness to help us think through the elusive target problem.

At the 24th Special Tactics Squadron, we thank Lt Col Craig Rith (Commander), Chief Jack McMullen, MSgt Bob Rankin, Sgt Ray Benjamin, TSgt Andrew Martin, SMSgt Klukas, and MSgt Herren for briefing us on their unique mission, for demonstrating equipment, and especially for sharing their experiences during U.S. operations in Somalia in 1993.

Col Yauch, Deputy Commander of the 18th Air Support Operations Group, hosted us on a visit to Pope AFB and Fort Bragg. We appreciate the time that he, Lt Col Bruce Gebhard, Lt Col Barsch, and the officers and NCOs of a Tactical Air Control Party spent explaining their mission.

In the AC-130 community, we thank Capt Tyler Shepperd AFSOC/DOXT for arranging and participating in a roundtable with gunship experts. We also thank Lt Col Andy Hamilton, Commander of the 16th Special Operations Squadron, Lt Col David Gold, Lt Col Bardley, TSgt Nick Curtis, and other squadron personnel for sharing their expertise and brainstorming with us about the use of current and potential USAF assets in search of elusive targets.

Col Jon Ball, Lt Col Tom Toltzien, and Maj Stephen Bishop, of the UAV Battle Lab at Eglin AFB, kindly briefed us on USAF UAV programs.

We thank Lt Col Steven (“Hari”) Carey, Air Force Doctrine Center, Maxwell AFB, Alabama, for arranging a meeting with the research team and for his comments on our proposed changes to Air Force and joint counterland doctrine. We spent a very profitable several hours discussing the elusive target problem with Lt Col Carey and other officers at the Doctrine Center and benefited considerably from the exchange.

At Nellis AFB, Nevada, Col Charles Westenhoff, Director of Joint Suppression of Enemy Air Defense (JSEAD), and his staff provided informative briefings on air defense issues. Lt Col John Sowden, Commander 547th Intel Squadron, gave us an informative tour and briefing of the threat museum. Col Michael Hart, Lt Col Dick Scarbrock, and Lt Col Harold Murphree hosted us at the Air Ground Operations School. We thank them and their instructor staff for a helpful roundtable discussion. Lt Col Brian Berghdahl, Commander, 15th Reconnaissance Squadron, and squadron officers and NCOs gave us briefings on the capabilities of the Predator UAV. We particularly appreciated the opportunity to visit the flight line, see the aircraft, and view a simulated aircraft mission in the control van. Thanks to Capt Margaret Morris, Air Warfare Center protocol, who arranged our visit.

At RAND, we would like to thank our reviewers, John Gordon and Joel Kvitky, for their detailed and thoughtful critiques of the draft report. We also thank the following RAND colleagues for sharing their expertise with us and/or commenting on our briefing: Glenn Buchan, Robert Button, Dave Frelinger, Scott Gerwehr, Jeff Hagen, Ted Harshberger, Glenn Kent, Zalmay Khalilzad, Tom McNaugher, Rich Mesic, Bruce Nardulli, David Orletskey, David Ochmanek, John Pinder, Bob Preston, Bill Rosenau, David Shlapak, Abe Shulsky, Alan Trevor, and Ted Warner. Sandy Petitjean and Bruce Cheeks turned our briefing slides into quality graphics, and Joanna Alberdeston prepared the manuscript. We thank Marian Branch, our exceptional editor, for her many contributions to this report.
